

While all of the students in our After School Program have benefited academically, one fifth grader has been able to raise her grades from D's to B's. When Clare started the program, she was on academic probation and would rarely finish her homework.

But her struggles extended past the classroom. When she was only 13 months old, she suffered severe burns in an accident. She's had numerous skin grafts and tissue repair surgeries since the accident, most recently with an operation at the end of fourth grade. Clare's mother says the experience has left her with low self confidence and affected her performance in school.

After only month in our After School Program, Clare's attitude toward her studies changed completely. She received our "Most Improved Student" award, has been able to raise her GPA from 1.1 to 3.2 and her teacher expects her grades to improve even more.

Peace,
